

The Indiana Privacy law on telephones has been the greatest thing that has happened to this state. It has stopped the calls that come thru the day when my son who works nights has to sleep and when evening comes and dealing with the public all day, it is a relief for peace and quite for my husband and I. We don't need people calling and trying to sell us item or subscribe to magazines we don't want. If we want something than the newspapers give us the information we need or the yellow pages of our phone books. I don't like being rude, but by the time I got someone on the phone who didn't want to take NO for an answer I can get nasty. It is just a job for them, but they don't need that kind of abuse either.

Jo Messer